A Personal health record is a place where you keep all your health information, so you can easily see and share it with your providers.

Why Keep a Personal Health Record?

All your health information in one place

It can be difficult to manage your condition when seeing multiple providers. Have all of your health information in one place in case of an emergency or when coordinating your care.

More involvement in your care

Build your own personal health record to gain a deeper understanding of your conditions and have more communication with your providers.

Lessen medical costs

If you have had a test done recently, why pay to have it done again? Having your own health record available to show providers your test results means no repeat tests.
